Excerpt from Rambles of a Naturalist on the Shores and Waters of the China Sea: Being Observations in Natural History During a Voyage to China, Formosa, Borneo, Singapore, Etc., Made in Her Majesty's Vessels in 1866 and 1867

The circumstances under which the voyage here recorded was undertaken need not be fully entered into. Suffice it to say, that, actuated solely by a desire of increasing my own information, and the hope of, in some measure, advancing science, I was induced to seize an opportunity which seemed to present itself of fulfilling what had always been an object of my ambition. The pleasure I have myself derived from it has entirely outweighed the vexations and drawbacks to which I have been subjected in its fulfilment. That I have met with disappointment and discouragement from those to whom I had most right to look for support and co-operation, is a circumstance which, although it greatly limited and curtailed my operations, is entirely forgotten in the delight of having visited Nature in her deepest recesses, and viewed her in her grandest aspects.
