There are so many things happening in the world of public service. It is sometimes difficult to pinpoint just one thing. With technology and the Internet, the world seems smaller. Yet, it is still vast. In all of it, there are troubles – political uprisings to be more precise. With so much happening in the realm of public service, there is a need (dare I say a call) for better leadership. People in public service are human and subject to flaws like everyone else. PILLARS for Public Servants is a mentoring guide for those in public service – to include their teams and family members – to help them in the areas of character, prudence and savoir faire.
